STATEMENT OF THE CASE

Defendant Manuel Loma-Torres (“Defendant”) was indicted by a grand jury on February 27, 2008, and charged with being a deported alien found in the United States in violation of 8 U.S.C. § 1326. The Indictment includes a special allegation that Defendant was deported, removed, and excluded after June 6, 2006.

II

STATEMENT OF FACTS<sup>1/</sup>

On January 27, 2008, Senior Patrol Agent Luis E. Burruel was informed by local police that Defendant and another alien had been found walking in an agricultural area about four miles northwest of Brawley, California. When Agent Burruel arrived, he asked Defendant where he was a citizen or national, and Defendant replied that he was from Mexico and admitted that he had crossed into the United States without permission. Defendant was then taken into custody and advised of their administrative rights. Later, while being transported to the station, Agent Burruel asked Defendant if he had been previously deported, and Defendant replied “yes.” The agent asked whether he had served time in jail, and Defendant admitted that he had done time in jail for illegal drugs. At the station, Defendant was advised of his Miranda rights and agreed to answer questions without a lawyer. During his post-Miranda statement, which was videotaped, Defendant admitted that he was a citizen of Mexico, and that had illegally crossed into the United States by crossing through the mountains, and that he had been previously deported.

III

POINTS AND AUTHORITIES

A. THE MOTION TO DISMISS THE INDICTMENT SHOULD BE DENIED BECAUSE THERE WAS NO VIOLATION OF THE FIFTH AMENDMENT PRESENTMENT CLAUSE

Defendant argues that the Indictment is defective because it does not allege a deportation date

1 or a temporal relationship to his removal. See Def’s Memorandum of Points and Authorities in Support
2 of Motion to Dismiss (“Def’s Memorandum”), at 2. Defendant acknowledges, however, that the 3 Indictment specifically alleges that Defendant was removed from the United States subsequent to June 4 6, 2006. [Id. at 2.] This date is subsequent to Defendant’s aggravated felony conviction and prior to his 5 “found in” date of January 27, 2008, as charged in the Indictment. Defendant, relying on United States
6 v. Salazar-Lopez, 506 F.3d 748, 751-52 (9th Cir. 2007), argues that the indictment’s allegation that 7 defendant was removed “subsequent to” the date of the prior conviction is not sufficient.. However,
8 Salazar-Lopez actually supports the indictment against this Defendant. Specifically, the Ninth Circuit
9 stated that “the date of the removal, or at least the fact that [Defendant] had been removed after his 10 conviction, should have been alleged in the indictment and proved to the jury.” Salazar-Lopez, 506 F.3d 11 at 752 (emphasis added). Here, the indictment expressly states that Defendant was removed subsequent 12 to June 6, 2006, his date of conviction. Thus, under Salazar-Lopez, the indictment need not specifically 13 allege the date of removal.

14 Defendant nevertheless retools his argument by alleging that the lack of specificity violates the 15 Fifth Amendment’s Presentment Clause. He alleges that the lack of specificity violates the Presentment 16 Clause in two ways: (1) that there is no indication that the grand jury “was charged with the legal 17 meaning of the word ‘removal’ . . . as opposed to being simply removed from the United States in the 18 colloquial sense, and (2) that the Government may at trial rely on a deportation that was never presented 19 to, or considered by, the grand jury. Def’s Memorandum at 4-5. Defendant’s claims lack merit.

20 The Court should deny Defendant’s motion to dismiss the indictment based on his speculation 21 regarding the adequacy of the instructions to the grand jury regarding legal terms such as “removal” or 22 “deportation.” The U.S. Supreme Court has held that the Fifth Amendment right not to be tried for a 23 crime not presented to a grand jury is triggered by “only a defect so fundamental that it causes the grand 24 jury no longer to be a grand jury, or the indictment no longer to be an indictment.” Midland Asphalt 25 Corp. v. United States, 489 U.S. 794, 802 (1989). If a grand jury should ever return a true bill when 26 there is insufficient evidence, the greatest safeguard is the petit jury and the rules governing its 27 determination of guilty. See Sears, Roebuck & Co., 719 F.2d 1386, 1392 (9th Cir. 1983).

28 Moreover, the Constitution does not require the government to provide to the grand jury legal

1 instructions regarding terms in an indictment. In United States v. Kenny, 645 F.2d 1323 (9th Cir. 1981),
2 cert. denied, 452 U.S. 920 (1981), the Court rejected the defendant's request to dismiss the indictment 3 on the basis of his allegation that the grand jury returned a true bill without any instruction on the 4 applicable law. The Court stated that it was "not persuaded that the Constitution imposes the additional 5 requirement that grand jurors receive legal instructions" and warned that "the giving of such instructions
6 portends protracted review of their adequacy and correctness." Id. at 1347.

7 In this case, Defendant seeks to accomplish precisely what Kenny feared. Namely, he wishes
8 for this Court to review the adequacy and correctness of any instruction to the grand jury. The Court
9 cannot do so. This is particularly true considering that even if there was evidence—rather than merely 10 Defendant's speculation—that the grand jury was not instructed on an element of the offense, this would 11 not be sufficient grounds to compel the dismissal of the indictment. See Wright, 667 F.2d at 796 12 (holding that erroneous grand jury instructions do not automatically invalidate an otherwise proper 13 indictment); United States v. Larrazolo, 869 F.2d 1354, 1359 (9th Cir.1989), overruled on other grounds 14 by Midland Asphalt, 489 U.S. at 799-800 (concluding that even if the grand jury instructions were 15 erroneous, the defendant failed to show that he was prejudiced).

16 In the same vein, there is no basis for Defendant to argue that the Government might try to offer 17 evidence of a removal that differs from the one presented to the grand jury, much less that this would 18 be improper. Any argument that the Indictment should be dismissed on this basis is wholly undermined 19 by the fact that the United States often presents evidence in § 1326 prosecutions of multiple 20 deportations. See United States v. Martinez-Rodriguez, 472 F.3d 1087, 1092 (9th Cir. Jan 3, 2007), as 21 amended (stating that "the government was entitled to introduce evidence of both deportations to hedge 22 the risk that the jury may reject the offered proof of one deportation, but not the other"). This 23 longstanding practice belies Defendant's claim that the Government is limited to proving one 24 deportation and that this single particular deportation must be presented to the grand jury.

25 More importantly, the remedy for Defendant's alleged problem is not to dismiss the indictment.
26 An accused's only cognizable interest in grand jury proceedings—and thus the only interest that courts
27 can vindicate by dismissing an indictment on constitutional grounds—is the right to have a legally 28 constituted grand jury make an informed and independent evaluation of the evidence to determine if

1 there is probable cause to believe him guilty of a crime. United States v. Sears, Roebuck & Co., 719
2 F.2d 1386, 1392 n.7 (9th Cir. 1983) (citing United States v. Wright, 667 F.2d 793, 796 (9th Cir. 1982)).
3 The defendant must show that the prosecutor's conduct was "so flagrant" that it deceived the grand jury
4 in a significant way, thereby infringing on its ability to exercise independent judgment. See Wright, 667
5 F.2d at 796. Defendant has not and cannot allege prosecutorial misconduct. Furthermore, from the face
6 of the Indictment, the grand jury found probable cause to believe that Defendant was removed from the 7 United States subsequent to August 29, 2002. Such a finding is sufficient to satisfy the requirements
8 of United States v. Covian-Sandoval, 462 F.3d 1070 (9th Cir. 2006), and must necessarily suffice to 9 satisfy the Presentment Clause.

10 As previously stated, Defendant does not and cannot credibly allege that the Government
11 attempted to mislead the grand jury. Furthermore, there is no basis to suppose that the grand jury was 12 impaired in its ability to independently evaluate the evidence. Because Defendant has nothing but pure 13 speculation to support his motion to dismiss, it should be denied.

14 IV

15 CONCLUSION

16 The Government respectfully requests that the Court deny Defendant's motions for the 17 reasons stated above.
